Dear Ms. Labs:

The Colorado Bureau of Investigation (CBI) received your request pursuant to the Colorado Open Records Act (CORA) and/or the Colorado Criminal Justice Records Act (CCJRA) request on November 1, 2019, for “all search warrants, applications for search warrants, cancellations, and authorization for search warrants between 2012 to the date of processing this request.”

I would like to clarify that the CBI Investigative computer system does not have the ability to search and retrieve documents by specific categories (i.e. search warrants) within a case file. When an agent creates a case file, any additional documentation is added as an attachment within the file. The system does not have the search capabilities to differentiate and retrieve these types of documents.

The CBI is a criminal justice agency as defined by section 24-72-302, C.R.S., and does not have an obligation to manipulate data to create a new record that is responsive to a records request. Office of the State Court Administrator v. Background Info. Servs., Inc. 994 P. 2d 420, 432 (Colo. 1999).
